

ZACATECAS VICTORY DECISIVE FOR VILLA

CONSTITUTIONALIST GENERAL
TAKES IMPORTANT STRONG-HOLD AFTER FIERCE BATTLE.

NEW HOPES FOR PEACE

Mediation Prospects Assume a More
Optimistic Turn Today, Giving
Hope for an Adjustment of Internal Strife.

Zacatecas, June 25.—The fierce fighting on both sides and an unusually high loss of lives to both federal and constitutionalist forces, ended last night in the capture of Zacatecas. The federal troops of General Villa, who were fighting for four days of battle to take the federal stronghold of Central Mexico.

The federalists under General Medina Barron, defended their position stubbornly, but finally were overcome by the forces of General Villa and General Natera. The constitutionalist soldiers scaled hill after hill and mountain after mountain, killing and wounding troops of the federalists and sustaining heavy losses themselves. So far it has been impossible to secure an accurate estimate of the loss on both sides.

Heavy Loss of Life. The heaping of dead bodies on mountain sides and in the city bore mute testimony of the ferocity of the fighting. General Villa was in van of the attacking party. Five members of his staff accompanying him were wounded. The number of constitutionalist officers killed and wounded is unusually great. General Rodriguez, one of the best of Villa's brigade commanders, was shot through the throat, and is not expected to live.

The constitutionalists in many cases had to advance on their hands and knees.

These feats were accomplished under machine gun fire. Nothing seemed to lessen the determination of Villa's troops, though the federalists had thrown up trenches on all sides. Hill after hill was covered by the attacking troops. The cordons of defense gradually narrowed until the last hill on the outskirts of the city fell into the hands of the Villa troops.

Present Situation. El Paso, June 25.—The taking of Zacatecas places the entire northern part of Mexico and much more than half of the republic's territory in the hands of the constitutionalists. It marked another step in the race of the three rival constitutionalist leaders in Mexico City.

General Villa, from Zacatecas, will probably move against Aguascalientes.

General Pablo Gonzales, the eastern division commander, who took Tampico, has been ordered to take San Luis Potosi, now weakened by an almost complete evacuation. General Obregon, commander of the western army, is about to attack Guadalupe.

If successful, his troops would have a clearer road to the national capital than those of Villa or Gonzales.

Zacatecas, Mex., June 25.—After four days of preliminary fighting, the final assault of Zacatecas took place and resulted in the capture of the city at 3:30 p. m. on Wednesday. It was one of the most hotly contested battles during the present revolution, is the belief of leaders. Fourteen thousand federalists were entrenched in the seemingly impregnable position. Five thousand prisoners were captured by General Villa's troops, twelve cannons, nine military trains, 6,000 rifles and three carloads of rifles and other munitions were taken.

The federalists were reported to have

His cell during his previous stay in Sing Sing, known as the "lucky" cell, may not be vacant for several months.

SUICIDE IS CLIMAX TO AN UNHAPPY LIFE

ALBERT FITZGERALD TAKES HIS OWN LIFE BY INHALING
GAS THIS MORNING.

NOTE TO FORMER WIFE

Scribbled Message to Divorced Wife and Little Son Says "There is No Use Sticking Around."

Albert Fitzgerald, a young man of about thirty years, was found dead shortly after seven o'clock this morning at the home of Roy Roberts, 624 Hickory street. Death was evidently at his own hand, as his body was found prostrate across the gas stove, with all the burners turned on full force. The body was found by the divorced wife and little son, now living at Grand Rapids, Michigan, indicated that he had long entertained intentions of taking his own life, and that domestic troubles had driven him into a state of despondency.

Fitzgerald had been dead for several hours when he was discovered by Roberts. Dr. Charles Sutherland was called, however, and with employees of the New Gas Light Company worked the pulmotor for nearly an hour, but there were no signs of life. The physician declared the man had been dead since the morning of the discovery.

Fitzgerald had come to the Roberts home early last evening, and as Roberts is employed at the gas company, where Fitzgerald had been working, they spent the evening together. Fitzgerald was granted permission to spend the night with Roberts, whose family is visiting in a distant city. After breakfast Roberts left the place to obtain water at a neighbor's house, and as he left Fitzgerald remarked that "he would be going."

On coming back Fitzgerald was not in any of the downstairs rooms; the house was locked and Roberts left for work.

On the dining table the suicide wrote out a letter addressed to his divorced wife and child and then closed all the doors to the kitchen, pulled down the shutters and set off several cracks, and ended his life.

Fitzgerald's death comes as a climax to an unhappy life. In the note addressed to his former wife, he says: "Well, girl, say goodbye. There is no use sticking around." He refers to another woman and charges that she had been trying to "steal" his life. He closed with the statement: "I have tried to do good, but there are too many who are ready to kick you down."

Chief of Police Champion, who investigated the facts of the case this afternoon, is confident that another woman, named "Blanche," has figured in late in Fitzgerald's career. In a diary note-book found in the home, he said, he had been employed by the gas company up until Monday the fifteenth, when without reason he quit his work. Since that time he had been sleeping nights in the suburbs, he said. Several years ago the man lived with his wife and son at a residence on Glen street, but about a year ago, his wife left him and took up residence in Grand Rapids, Mich. There she now resides.

Domestic trouble discouraged Fitzgerald and about a year ago the police made a search for him on the complaint of his wife. Fitzgerald had been paying alimony to his wife who obtained a divorce some months ago. Also probation papers were found, issued by a Michigan court, dated December 30, 1913 for a period of two years. Letters show him to be infatuated with a Janesville woman who signed as "Dennie," who the police declare to be Blanche.

As he lay down the man is survived by his wife, a twelve year old son, a father, who resides in Grand Rapids and one brother whose address could not be learned. Fitzgerald was sent by Chief Champion to these relatives and the body was taken to the Ryan undertaking rooms.

SHOWS HEAVY LOAN TO THOMAS PAYNTER

New Sensations Revealed as Result of Investigation into Lorimer Bank Crash.

Chicago, June 25.—Investigation by the United States district attorney and other officials into the books of the La Salle Street Trust & Savings bank, shows loans of large sums to persons interested in the bank, it was learned today.

The federal authorities are investigating an item on the books showing a loan of $40,000 to Thomas H. Paynter, who was formerly a United States senator, and a member of the first senatorial investigation committee, which sat on the validity of Lorimer's election to the senate. Paynter voted Lorimer's re-election to his seat. The books of the former national bank thus far examined, shows that $100,000 of the loans was repaid.

State and county authorities are investigating the allegations that "inside" depositors were warned to withdraw their deposits before the failure of the bank.

HEARST IS JUMPING DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Strength of Democracy Throughout
Country is Rapidly Falling Off.
(By Winfield Jones.)

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Leading democrats everywhere are turning against the Wilson administration. William H. Hearst, a lifelong democrat, openly advocates of the present democratic administration and congressional majority.

In a vigorous editorial which appeared in the New York American on June 14, and presumably has appeared in the Hearst chain of newspapers throughout the country, Mr. Hearst unequivocally urges that Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party be "punished and repudiated," that not alone our un-American president, but "the unfaithful democratic members of the house of representatives and the traitorous senators" should be "expelled from office." The editorial concludes as follows:

"There is no national recall in this country, and it is impossible to recall Wilson until the end of his four years' term. But it will be possible to remove the democrats in congress and to deprive the democratic party of control of the government in the election which occurs in November of this year."

"The election of this year will not be a party matter. It will be a patriotic one. It will be a referendum on the duty of loyal American citizens to consider only the welfare of our people and our country, and to remove a party which is a menace to national prosperity and progress."

"There should be no division among the people on minor matters, to endanger the outcome of the fall election. There should be unity among all patriotic citizens, a determination to prevent any further injury and humiliation to the nation, and a hope that there is still time to prevent the abandonment of the Philippines or any other disastrous act of democratic disloyalty and stupidity."

"There is no limit to the injury that the democratic party might inflict upon this country if it were returned to power with any sort of endorsement of its dangerous and disloyal policies. The nation must be rescued from such possible injury, and the injury already inflicted must be repaired as far as it is possible to do so."

"The men named to oppose the disloyal democrats this fall must be worthy of so great and so patriotic a task. They must be elected overwhelmingly, not only as a rebuke to a traitorous democracy, but as a benefit to our beloved country."

Despite the whining of the handful of eastern reformers who are loudly protesting against the removal of the tariff on raw sugar to the end that their margin of profit may be increased, sugar is one of the cheapest of domestic commodities. The sugar tariff has furnished a revenue of $50,000,000 annually and sugar is so cheap that it has not been felt by the consumer.

At the same time the republican tariff built up a domestic sugar industry that produces 300,000 long tons every year of sugar. There is $300,000,000 invested in the industry, which distributes $50,000,000 or more among farmers annually.

It is a big and growing industry. Taking off the tariff has simply put a few million dollars more into the pockets of a few refiners and sugar plantation owners in Cuba.

It has and is building up a monopoly that will control the sugar market of this country.

Uncle Sam is already feeling the loss of the sugar revenue keenly. He is trying to make up for it by an income tax, but this is falling short. Many democrats realize that a great mistake was made by a congressional tampering with the sugar tariff, it has roused a strong sentiment against the party that is likely to cost it the loss of the house of representatives next fall and the presidency later on. The only hope the party is to admit that it has made a mistake, restore the tariff on sugar and start the industry in this country on a new lease of life.

"We had twice as much advertising this year as last, and our clean-up campaign was just twice as effective. The success of the campaign is directly proportional to the amount of advertising we do."

"The only way to focus attention on our plan was to advertise. Without plenty of publicity the house-cleaning would have been spread over the whole year, and it would have been impossible to remove the rubbish in one week."

BIG NEW YORK FIRM IN FINANCIAL CRASH

H. B. CLAFLIN AND COMPANY,
DRY GOODS CONCERN, GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY.

CLOSES MANY STORES

Chain of Stores Operated Throughout the Country May Be Involved.—
Shifting of Trade Centers in Cause.

New York, June 25.—The great dry goods house of H. B. Claflin company failed today with liabilities of $350,000,000, and assets estimated at $40,000,000. The proceedings—friendly and unfriendly—throw the firm into bankruptcy. Two receivers were named under bonds of $500,000 each.

The Claflin company controls of is affiliated with some retail stores throughout the United States and it was the endorsement of their paper, held by more than three thousand banks here and in interior cities, that caused the crash.

The United Dry Goods company and the Associated Merchants' company, though affiliated with the Claflin company through stock control, were in no way involved in the failure. Their chain of stores, it was stated in financial districts, would remain intact. Hope also was expressed that the Claflin retail enterprises would be successful.

The following statement was given out at the office of the H. B. Claflin company:

"The unprecedented shifting of trade centers in New York has caused great loss to many interests. In the case of H. B. Claflin company, the upturn movement of business has seriously curtailed our wholesale profits and has compelled us to rely mainly on the profits from financial retail stores through the country. A reorganization of the company, necessary pending a readjustment of the affairs of the company. A plan of reorganization for the Claflin company will soon be presented, which we hope will prove acceptable to both creditors and stockholders."

"The Associated Merchants' company and United Dry Goods company are not themselves borrowers of money. They are in exceedingly strong financial positions."

A noteholders' protective committee has been formed to look after the interests of the noteholders. The backs concerned will be represented on this committee of which J. S. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce, will be chairman.

New York banks are said to have made large advances through the Claflin company recently, with the hope of averting financial embarrassment. New York banks there interested have been seriously curtailed our wholesale profits and has compelled us to rely mainly on the profits from financial retail stores through the country. A reorganization of the company, necessary pending a readjustment of the affairs of the company. A plan of reorganization for the Claflin company will soon be presented, which we hope will prove acceptable to both creditors and stockholders."

Interested merchants were shocked with the news of the failure. The week in an attempt to avert the failure. It is understood that $30,000,000 was necessary.

Mr. Morgan and others were most generous in the way they participated in the conference, but it was a question of raising the whole amount or none at all.

announcement of the failure caused a general decline in the opening of the stock market. The losses were not heavy. Influential interests said that in their opinion the failure of the Claflin company control were financially sound.

John Claflin was associated with dry goods business for more than twenty years. He was twenty-two when he entered the employ of his father's firm, then known as H. B. Claflin & company. Three years later he became a member of the firm, and in 1890 formed a partnership with his brother, John Claflin, and in 1893 became H. B. Claflin.

John Claflin died in 1895 and under the terms of his will his business continued by estate until 1899, when his son, John Claflin, formed the present corporation.

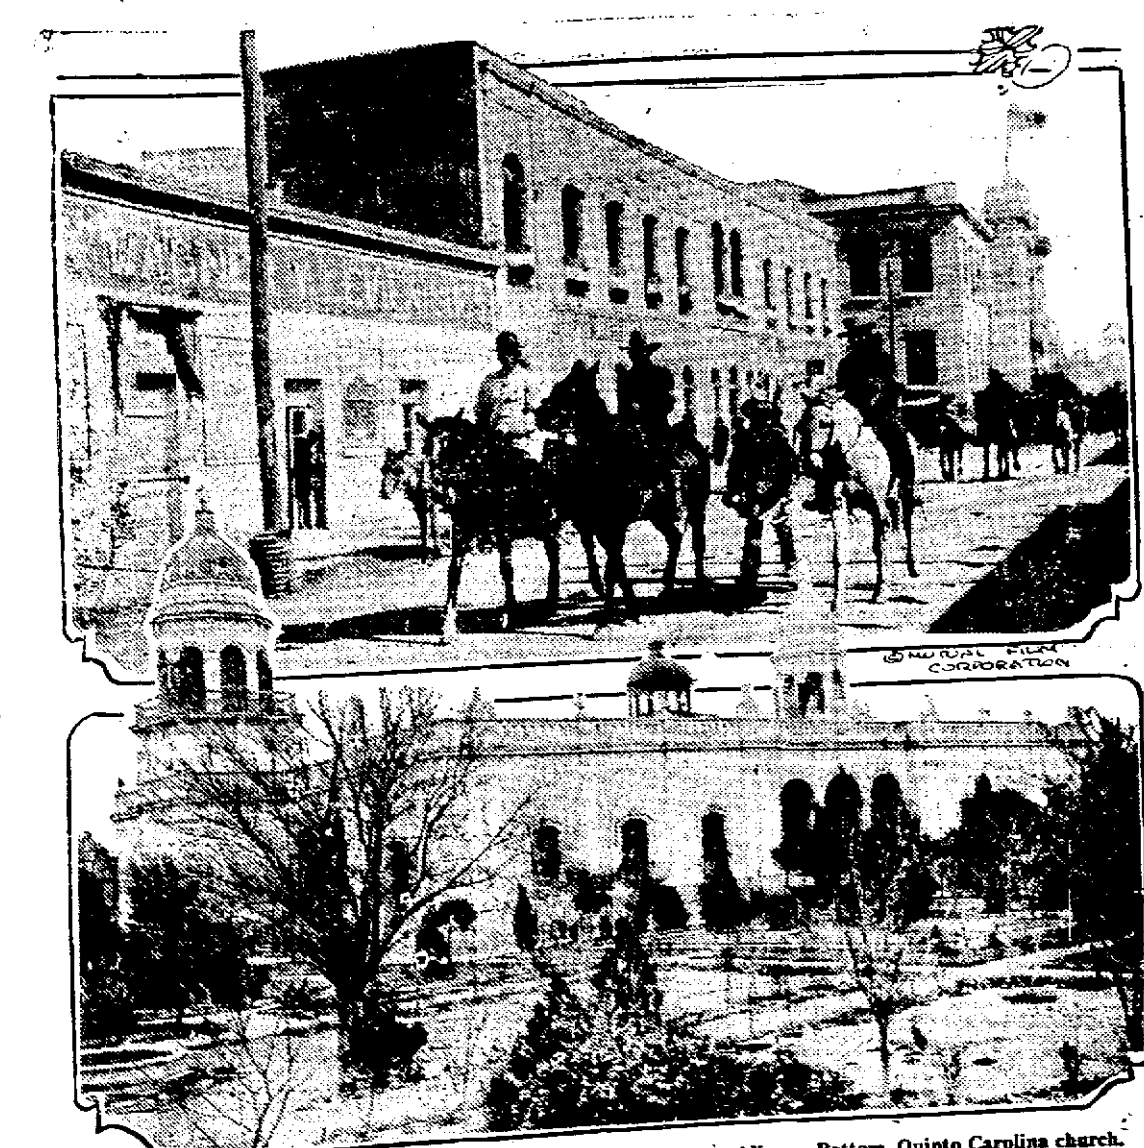

Kansas City, June 25.—Alexander New, legal representative of the H. B. Claflin company, of New York, was appointed receiver in the failure of the dry goods store of this city, the stock of which is owned by Claflin company.

BRITISH ATHLETES DEFEAT AMERICANS IN THREE CLASHES

Americans Will Have to Win Four Coming Matches to Hold Sport Honors Over England.

[Special to the Gazette.]

New York, June 25.—To crow over the British Lion this year, the erstwhile fearsome Eagle will have to take the next four international sets in a row. Out of seven England-American clashes so far in the year 1914, those bally Britishers have grabbed off the four that have occurred. Last April J. Bull sprung his first jolt when the Oxford University relay team showed its heels to America's best at Philadelphia. Wallop No. 2 came when British amateur golfers at Sandwich, Eng., beat the cream of the United States golfers.

It is almost too recent to go in to the details of how the four British joltists stole the Big Four's last year's stuff and from the jump fought the American polo team to a standstill, thereby grabbing the coveted Worcester Cup.

The four remaining international battles are the Willie Ritchie-Freddie Welsh lightweight scrap at London; the Davis Cup tennis matches here this summer; the open golf championship in England to be played shortly, and the yacht races for the America's Cup in September. Experts believe that the Americans should win the British into camp in the tennis matches and it is believed the chances favor a United States victory when Shamrock IV meets the American cup defender. As to the open golf championship, golfing experts claim to see little chances unless young Francis Ouimet is right.

Even if things work out this way and the open golf championship title is won by the Englishman, the "standing of the teams" will read as follows: England, won 4, lost 3, percentage .571; America won 3, lost 4, percentage .429. If Ritchie beats Welsh he will be slightly above Ouimet's class should the latter be defeated at golf. Ouimet has a French amateur championship title to tote around.

Shorten Games.
President Tener of the National League has just issued an order that should bring glee and balm to the hearts of the housewives as well as make a big hit with the fans. Tener has determined to make the games shorter. He has ordered that hereafter outfielders must stop using an extra ball for practice between innings. He could make a still bigger hit with everyone concerned if he started the games earlier all over the circuit.

Which affords a tip to the Federal League magnates. About as popular a move as the Gilmores could make, but he will start the games at some where near the same time—and an earlier time at that—all over the Fed. circuit.

It may be—and then again it may not be—that the Federal League is dead, embalmed, buried with ceremonies and returned to ashes. It is true that it will take another season to tell whether the public wants the Federal League, but from the space some of the eastern sporting writers are taking to write the long drawn out obituary, it looks like they are trying hard to convince themselves of something they don't believe.

Sport Snap Shots

The success of the Athletics may be attributed to luck at times, but it should not be forgotten that it is mostly luck of their own contriving. For instance, the manner in which they score two men on a squeeze play may be called luck by some, but most of us are willing to admit that it's largely the pep and headiness of the Athletics. They have worked this play with unusual success this season. Silk O'Loughlin is fond in his praise of it. "It is a beautiful play," says O'Loughlin, "because they take a chance on losing the first man at the plate, but as a rule they put it over clean. They're sure of scoring the second man while the catcher is trying to get the ball on the first one. Of course both men have to be mighty fast." Another similar one that always gets a hand is the way in which their man on first gets to third on a double steal while the other is scoring. They bank on the confusion at the plate that generally attends any double steal. Under cover of this the man on first very frequently is able to get around to third if he's fast. Plays of this sort are worth trying on a team that has the speed and brains of the Athletics.

That the present state of baseball affairs is not as pleasant as it might be is quite frankly admitted by Charley Comiskey, the White Sox boss. The players in their eagerness to get all they can out of the game and the generous offers of the fans have had a great deal to do with this, he declares. Wrangles, contract disputes and such stuff have all wearied the fans and there has been a most noticeable falling off in the baseball attendance.

Minor leagues will suffer the same as the majors," says Comiskey, "but all due to contract jumping and the demoralized condition of the players. There is no use trying to hide the true state of affairs. The public sees the true condition of the game even more quickly than the players. It has been the players, aided and abetted

WILL FRANK MORAN LAND LUCKY PUNCH?

White Boxer Has Fortune Within Grasp in Paris Bout With Black Jack, Next Saturday Night.

[Special to the Gazette.]

Paris, June 25.—Jack Johnson and Frank Moran, black and white, meet here Saturday night at the Velodrome d'Hiwer. If the white man wins, the lucky punch will be worth a fortune to him. If his punch lacks the necessary ginger, good night Mr. Moran! That is the way the betting man sizes up the fight. For Moran it means everything. Either he will open his eyes on Sunday morning a famous fighter, with a golden sunrise and a golden day in front of him, or he will regain consciousness only to realize that his sun has set and that he is not even a has-been; that he has had his chance and not made good; that he is an almost-was yet a never-was.

For Jack Johnson the fight doesn't mean so much. If he defeats Moran he will do more than is expected of him here. He will not gain a particle in popularity despite the fact that his need of public adoration is now a negligible quantity. Should he take the count he would lose nothing since he has nothing to lose. Win, lose or draw, he gets only his $30,000, plus $5,000 training expenses which he has now drawn. Lose or win he will become a professional automobile driver, having already signed a contract with certain makers of a Belgian car and a French firm of tire-makers, and made his plans for taking part in the French Grand Prix and the Russian Circuit this summer. If Moran, the merry, is right in his confidence that he will win, it will mean milk and honey, and gold and banknotes, for the lad from Smoke-town, Penn., will be the most popular hero who ever told the Statue of Liberty Good Morning. Roosevelt's return from Africa; Cook's return from the North Pole (or vicinity) or any of the other homecomers will have nothing on him, while vaudeville engagements and all the other spoils of pug championship will put him where Rockefeller will be grinding his false teeth. If he gets licked: Curtain.

Johnson has already signed to fight Sam Langford in London in September or October, Dick Klegin, the youngster who staged motor polo in England being the sporting impresario back of the match. According to Dick and Jack, no mention of the possible change of address on the part of the championship belt is mentioned in the contract. Gunboat Smith and Georges Carpentier, the latter being the French champion heavyweight of Europe, fight in July, in London, for the title of white heavyweight champion of the world. The winner of this event, it is said, will fight the winner of the Moran-Johnson mill. This means that the American Smith will be the next aspirant, if betting odds and past performances mean anything.

The Velodrome d'Hiwer—Winter Velodrome—promises to be jammed Saturday night, as it holds some 35,000 people. Ordinarily it is used as a cycle-race arena but now everything is changed. The saucer track is covered with numbered seats and the flat spaces inside the course is littered with chairs. Ringside seats are offered at $50 plus 10 per cent for the "poor tax" levied by the government. The Velodrome is in the western outskirts of Paris, within a stone's throw of the River Seine. It is very difficult to reach save in taxis or other similar conveyances, surface cars and the underground—which at this point is 60 feet overhead—running to all points save those a person desires to go. A short distance farther west is the Issy-des-Moulinaux Aerodrome; to the east is the Eiffel Tower and the big wheel; across the river is the Trocadero.

All about the building are the tiny wineshops, little groceries and so on, such as one sees in any big town suburb, the keepers of which are conservative Frenchmen who still think "la savate" is the thing and that Moran and Johnson will try to kick each other to death in the ring.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TRANSLATING POETRY.
A FRIEND'S admiration for some particular passage of poetry or prose often passes our comprehension. We cannot understand what he sees to admire. The lines he quotes with glowing face and vibrating voice are mere dry words to us. And in like manner if we retally him some of our favorite lines, he will probably be astonished at our preference as to his taste is a puzzle to us; ours to him. And the answer to the puzzle is so simple, so obvious, that we are in danger of passing it by as we do many obvious things.

The explanation is that he can translate one piece of poetry, we another.

When we are keenly affected by a passage in a book it is because we have not merely read and understood it, but have been able to translate it into the language of our personal experience. Now each man's experience is different, and consequently the words that to one man are dry as dust are full of memories and meanings to another.

For instance, in Tennyson's "Passing of Arthur" there is a passage describing the country to which the King is going. "Where falls not hail nor rain nor any snow, nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies deep mowed down, happy, fair, with orchard lawns and bowery hollows crowned with summer sea."

Now the last lines of that passage have always had a peculiar charm for me. Yet I have quoted it to many people without kindling any response. Finally I tried to analyze it, and discovered this: I never read those lines. I see a certain very beautiful orchard on the edge of the ocean, which I once visited, and which fits that description. That is, I translate those lines into my own experience, and hence I love them. Naturally they do not awaken the same response in those minds in which they create no such vivid picture.

Again, how could anyone who has not been utterly, heart and body and soul tired, possibly translate Stevenson's—

"Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will."

"This be the verse you grave for me;
Here I lie where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

I have a book made up of the favorite quotations of well known people. "There's never a law of God or man runs north of fifty-three" is Rex Beach's favorite. To me and possibly you there is comparatively little in those lines, but it is easy to realize that Rex Beach translates them into living meaning. We accuse the young poet of vanity because he over-estimates them, that he translates them into the experiences which inspired them and fails to realize that others are not doing the same.

People who live much, see much, enjoy much and suffer much, have the largest vocabulary with which to translate. And that is why they are usually the people who appreciate poetry the most.

ship without a salt, set down in the cramped quarters of a city dweller's house and lot.
The sun was slowly sinking in the far down golden west. Slowly he turned his team towards home. Across the field came Jim Gray's cheery song.

Would you say: "Contentment is a pearl of great price," or "Contentment is a priceless pearl?" Do you possess it?

LESSONS IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Prepared by the
AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON D. C.

SEASONING FOR COTTAGE CHEESE, SOUPS AND SALADS.

The favorites of the diet, the highly flavored substances, like herbs and spices, which we use in small amounts only, seldom have much food value, but they are often the means of making the lower-priced food materials attractive and thus they may serve to keep down the cost of living. Americans are not much given to the use of these substances and might well take a lesson from some of the European nations. There is a vegetable of European origin, belonging like the onion, to the lily family and known as the chive, which has so good a flavor and is so easy to raise and to use, and is besides so ornamental as it grows, that it seems strange that American housekeepers do not make more use of it. The chive is a perennial which puts forth long, slender, hollow leaves and has small delicate purplish flowers. It can not easily be grown from the seed, but a bunch of chives can be separated and the parts replanted. They make an ornamental border for a flower or vegetable bed and can be grown in a pot or window box in the house. Some people put them into their fern dishes and consider them very decorative.

The advantage of using the chive, which resembles but is not exactly like the onion in taste and odor, besides the fact that it gives variety to the diet, is that it can be obtained in suitable form for use in cooking without the danger of getting any of it on the hands. The leaves can be cut off and snipped into small pieces by means of a pair of scissors, and, unless the hands touch the cut surfaces (and this is avoidable), no trace of the odor remains upon them. If one is sure the leaves of the plant are clean a paper or dish can be held under them and the leaves snipped directly on to it in pieces small enough for use. The cutting of the leaves does not injure the plant in any way; it seems rather to stimulate its growth and to make it more vigorous and thrifty.

The uses of the chive as a flavoring material are as numerous as those of the more familiar member of the same family—the onion; wherever chopped onion is used chopped chives may be substituted. A few special uses may, however, be mentioned. In very finely chopped condition it is an attractive addition to cottage cheese (see Farmers' Bulletin 357, Cheese and Its Economical Use in the Diet, and Farmers' Bulletin 413, The Care of Milk and Its Use in the Home), or other soft cream cheese and such mixtures may be used as sandwich fillings. It can be added to omelets and to milk sauces and soups. As an addition to plain lettuce salad it has almost no equal, the amount to be used depending, of course, upon the favor with which onion-like seasonings are held in the family.

Still another advantage may be mentioned. The chive is dark green in color and offers a pleasing contrast to the white of milk sauce or cottage cheese or to the yellow of salad dressing, thus attracting the eye as well as the palate.

Diversified Diet Necessary.

A normal diet is a diversified one. Only by such a diet can a human being obtain all the multitudinous substances which his body needs.

Peggy & Company

Our Friend Peggy is Here Observed Fixing the Net for an Innocent Bystander

Peggy in a bonnet and a simple littleingham frock swings down the road that leads through the pleasant village. There are girls who allure the eye in the primrose path, whose native airs lend a charm to any dress, however plain. Peggy is one of these, for she is oblivious to this. It is possible that she has dressed herself in this manner this morning that she may mingle unobserved among other country maidens. It is ever so much more probable that Peggy's plan is to captivate and ensnare the innocent bystander.

One is approaching now in a roadster. He is a pleasant-looking and young innocent bystander, and though he has seen Peggy before, never, he thinks, has he seen her half so charming as this morning. Of course Peggy has seen the young man before, but does she let on? Indeed, no. Both of them are keenly aware that a flirtation is imminent, though why they should feel that way it is hard to tell.

Peculiar Classification.

In the census office at Washington acts against the law are recorded under a few main heads, such as murder, burglary, etc. A lady who was working there recently ran across the crime, "Running a blind tiger." After a puzzled moment she placed it under the list, "Cruelty to Animals."

Some Bootless Remarks.

The whole-souled fellow is not half so likely to go on his uppers as the half-souled ones. The former is usually better bearded and doesn't peg out and leave a fellow in the lurch when he finds it necessary to revamp his fortunes after business affairs have run counter to his desires.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To prevent moths, before putting away shades or rugs, sprinkle with cayenne pepper.
To make silk that has been washed look like new, put a teaspoonful of methylated spirits to a pint of running water and iron while damp.
To prevent hard crust forming on a pan or boiled mush, rub the top with lard while still warm.
Salt and water is an excellent home-made gargle in case of sore throat.

THE TABLE.

Caramel Custard—Four cups of scalded milk, five eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cup of sugar. Put the sugar in an omelet pan, stir constantly over the hot part of the range until melted in a syrup of light brown color. Add gradually to the milk, being careful that the milk does not bubble up and go over, as it is liable on account of high temperature of the sugar. As soon as the sugar is melted in the milk, add the mixture gradually to the eggs slightly beaten; add the salt and flavoring, then strain in a buttered mould. Bake as a custard in a water bath and serve with caramel sauce.

Apple and Cheese Salad—Mix chopped pecans with twice their bulk of cream cheese, adding a little cream to bind the mixture. Season with pepper and salt and make into tiny balls. Pare mellow, tart apples, core and slice across the center into rings about one-half inch thick. Arrange rings on lettuce leaves and place several cheese balls in the center. Serve with cream salad dressing.

One-half tablespoonful of salt, one-half tablespoonful of mustard, three-quarters tablespoonful of sugar, one egg slightly beaten, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three-quarters cup of cream, one-quarter cup of vinegar. Mix the ingredients in the order given, adding the vinegar very slowly. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens, strain and cool.

Canned Peas With Onion—Empty a can of peas, pour off water and thoroughly drain. Chop onion in a round-bottomed tin, adding a little butter and a little salt. Stir until thoroughly heated; season with salt, also add pepper if liked.

The Home Beauty Parlor

Massage: Economy is no excuse when, for a small sum, you can make at home a full pint of the very best scalp and hair tonic as follows: Put 1 ounce quinine (from your druggist), into ½ pint alcohol (then add ½ pint water). Rub a little at a time well into the scalp and forehead and excess oil will quickly disappear. Continued use of the quinine tonic will restore the soft, fluff and beautiful gloss to brittle, faded hair. The timely use of this tonic will always keep your scalp healthy and your hair beautiful. This tonic is very soothing to tender, itching scalps.

Brown Eyes: For a harmless eye tonic dissolve 1 ounce crystals in 1 pint clear water and you will have as good an eye tonic as money can buy. This is excellent for tired, inflamed or itching eyes and quickly restores grandeur to the eyes. At a time and its use frequently overcomes the need for glasses.

Corn Oil: To stop gaining weight make up this simple, harmless formula at home. Take a tablespoonful three times a day and you will soon be rid of that trouble. In ½ pint hot water dissolve 4 ounces paraffin (which all good druggists have in stock). This treatment does not cut off dieting and is gentle, yet positive, in reducing fat. When your weight is sensibly reduced stop the treatment and your flesh will be solid and the skin free from wrinkles.

Teacher: You ask for a good wrinkle-eraser. I use plain aluminum cream-oline, the most effective thing I know for eradicating wrinkles and fine lines. It is made as follows: At home dissolve ½ pint at 100° in ½ pint cold water, then add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine and stir until thoroughly dissolved, apply generously to skin and massage lightly the long way of the wrinkles. This treatment erases wrinkles and has no effect on the fine complexion, stained tissues under the crease and day gradually assume their correct proportions. When this is done the wrinkle will have vanished. The aluminum cream-oline is very effective in cleansing the skin of pimples, blackheads and other blemishes.

Grace M. Paine in the back and legs and the usual "spring fever" are frequently caused by bad kidneys, and the trouble should receive prompt attention. I can at home a body-builder and tonic of resolute by pouring 1 ounce karoene (from your druggist) into ½ pint alcohol (do not use whisky) and adding ½ cupful sugar, then hot water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful before each meal is the dose. This gently rid the blood of poisons and put the liver, kidneys and stomach in a healthy condition, and its timely use prevents much sickness.

Florence: I find the best treatment for faded, "stringy" hair or dandruff is to shampoo regularly with a tablespoonful of camphor dissolved in a cup of hot water which will restore its color, fluff and shine and so invigorate the hair-follicles that the hair will come in thick and long. This makes plenty of thick, cleansing lather that loosens and dissolves all dust, dandruff and excess oil. Washing leaves scalp and hair wonderfully sweet, clean and healthy.

Athlete: Try using this simple lotion, which will insure you against freckles and protect your skin from spring winds. Dissolve 4 ounces gum-arabic (from any drug store) in other ½ pint hot water or when based and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply sparingly to face, neck and arms and rub lightly until it vanishes. The gum-arabic lotion is superior to powder because on application heats an entire day. Shiny skins, pimples, blotches and other complexion troubles disappear quickly, and the face has a glow to the finest complexion.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it right for a girl to go home from a dance with another fellow when she came with her brother and a girl friend?

or lace her shoes?
(6) Is it right for a girl to bite from a boy's apple or piece of cake?

QUESTION BOX.
(1) If her parents trusted her to go with her brother she should return home with him, unless her brother is older and knows that the other fellow is the sort of man he can trust to take proper care of his sister.

(2) Do you mean to go with him as a "steady"? If so, I'm afraid he is too hasty to be trusted. Tell him you are too young to have a "steady."

(3) I don't think it is quite square to the boys to do you. Talk over their letters with your mother, but keep them as private property from your girl friends. How would you like a boy to show your letters to his boy friends?

(4) It depends upon the kind of dances. I do not think public dances are good for a girl, my dear. You are apt to meet the wrong kind of people there.

(5) She should do these things in private.

(6) I see no particular harm in it, though it would be nice to cut off a slice of apple or break off a little piece of cake, than to bite into either.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been keeping company with a girl for over two years. I love her dearly and she says she loves me also. We are both eighteen. Are we old enough to know what love is?

(2) Is three times a week too often to visit the same girl? K. F.
(3) The fact that you have stuck to the same girl for two years proves you to be constant, and perhaps you have really found the girl you can love all your life. However, I marry now, and it would be wiser to let the girl be free in case some other man loves her and can provide a good home for her—she might like him better than you. I do not think a boy of eighteen, as a rule, understands what man-and-woman love really is, nor how to take care of a wife. A girl of that age is a little more advanced in her feelings, but even she is usually too much of a girl to make a good wife at that age.

(4) Aren't you a little afraid she might get tired of seeing you so often? However, if you are very contented, it may be all right. Only don't hog all her time and give her something in return for it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young lady of twenty-two. Am I engaged to a young man of same age? When he is around me he is very nice to me and takes me every place and gives me lots of presents.

He is now away and doesn't write to me very often and he always excuses himself by not having time. Of course he is working. When he went away he promised faithfully to write often.

He has only written three letters to me in five weeks, besides the cards he has sent, and he always says he dearly loves me.

I haven't any doubt but that he loves you, my dear, even though he is not writing often. Most men dislike to write letters, and since you know he is busy, don't worry about his not writing often. He is probably hustling to make a home for you. Write him nice letters, but not too often. It might be a good idea to tell him that you'll only write to him in answer to his letters. Maybe that will make him sit up and take notice.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

Once upon a time in the long, long ago, this is a fairy tale, a wise man said: "Contentment is a pearl of great price."

Ten acres of a truck farm. A five-room cottage. Around it a grove of giant trees. Behind it a woman bakes bread. A young woman who sang as she worked, coming frequently to the door to glance at the two children who were busily engaged in building a house in the sandpile under the shade of one of the trees. In the far beyond, working down the slope toward the river, she could see her husband. She stood watching him. She would bring him down a jug of water, in time to meet him when he made this end of the field again.

"What made you come in the blazing sun, Mollie? Where was the boy, you should have sent him to the mill, as he tipped back a battered straw hat and wiped his brow. 'What if I wanted to come?' said Mollie, unwrapping a sandwich and presenting it to him with a smile.

"That being the case, I invite you to sit here in the shade a bit and share my lunch." Above the sky was bright and blue. The river ran below. The huge old tree near its edges cast a welcome shade.
"Time's up," said Jim, looking at his watch. "Do you know girl, that you are a mighty good cook? You can make a fine switchell, too. I am a first-class shoemaker. I won't be a shoemaker. 'I won't be a shoemaker,' he resumed, 'if you know just how much you help me? I can work twice as well; do so much more with

WILD ANIMAL SHOW FEATURE OF CIRCUS

Performing Wild Beasts Have Important Place On Hagenbeck-Wallace Program—Many Fine Acts.

Circus day has come and gone. For the small boy—yes, and girl, too—it was a day never to be forgotten, and the grown-ups who enjoyed the wonderful trained animal acts, which were easily the big feature of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus program, were as enthusiastic in their appreciation as the younger folk.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace shows had all the high class acts necessary to make a great circus a success. Equestrians, aerial artists, tumblers, acrobats, tight wire performers, and all sorts of circus acts made up a program which was complete in every respect. But it was the trained animal acts that seemed most wonderful and inspired the most awe. Performing lions, tigers and leopards, all in one cage, a herd of ten Polar bears doing clever stunts, a horseback riding lion, trained seals, elephants, and then the donkeys, ponies, horses, dogs, and even a pig, all had their part in the performance.

Not a few persons in the audience shuddered when Prof. Albers placed his head between the jaws of the most unruly of the lion tamer, for the fate of the Chicago lion tamer, Dietrich, was still fresh in their memory. The horseback riding lion scored a hit and was applauded when he jumped through a fire hoop, a performance repeated a half dozen times.

That circus polar bears could be trained to do so many clever stunts, some of them quite clownishly, was subject for remark, but the ten big fellows seemed really to enjoy their part in the program and the applause which they received. One especially clever bear balanced himself on a large ball on a plank and held a firebrand in his teeth.

For the circus acts it may be said at the outset that all were of a high class. The horseback riding was delightful, and the dancing, waiting and tangoing horses were as fine as ever entered any show ring.

And then there were clowns and clowns and more clowns. A whole army of mirth makers was let loose in the arena at one stage of the program and for a few minutes the fun was as fast and furious—nothing would express it better than just that hackneyed phrase. The stunts of the funny men were all clever, original and north-provoking, a sure cure for the blues. There were not a few in the vast audiences that were present at both performances who paid most of their attention to the clowns' antics, and they had plenty to watch at that, for some of them were always in evidence.

With everything considered it was a circus of the best type, all the acts were star acts, and the program was balanced to suit every taste. A word should also be said of the excellent music by the Hagenbeck-Wallace concert band under the direction of Bandmaster Massey, which was most delightful and inspiring.

FORMER JANESVILLE GIRL IS WEDDED IN MONTANA

Announcements of the marriage of Miss Gertrude M. Stout, daughter of Mrs. L. A. Stout, former Janesville residents, to a Montana young man, have been received in this city. Miss Stout has been residing for the past five years at Culbertson, Sheridan county, Mont.

PLAYGROUNDS WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Washington, Webster and Jefferson School Grounds Are Ready for Opening With the Adams Uncertain.

If the present plans of Walter Cox, supervisor of the city playgrounds, are carried out the grounds at the Washington, Jefferson and Webster schools will be open for the children of the city Monday morning. The completion of the Adams school grounds for the opening is not yet certain as the workmen who are erecting the apparatus have been delayed in their work.

The placing of the swings, climbing ropes and the baseball, volley ball and the basketball courts at the Washington school is progressing at a rapid pace and it is expected that the plot will be completed today.

A tennis court is being marked off at this ground for the use of the older people in that vicinity. Because of the lack of space Mr. Cox will be unable to have tennis courts in any of the other playgrounds. With the present equipment the grounds are already crowded so that it will be impossible to add other structures for the use of those who will attend the pleasure spots.

The swimming classes will not be commenced until one week from Monday because the supervisor wishes to organize the work at the four grounds and have it in running order before the swimming classes are formed. Under the present plans every person in the city, whether old or young, will have a chance to swim under direction of the supervisor.
